

Welcome to Caird Park

Caird Park was formally opened to the public on 27th October, 1920, by Mrs. Marryat, sister of Sir James Caird, Bart., the local benefactor who bought the ruined estate in 1912.

Mains Castle, built on the site of much older strongholds, was begun by the grandson and completed by the great-grandson of Sir Robert Graham. The latter – Sir David Graham of Fintry – finished the building of the Castle in 1582, as is shown by a dated stone in the structure.

Den o' Mains forms the course of the Gelly Burn, which feeds the larger Dighty Burn. This small shaded valley is home to varied wildlife, including kingfishers, orchids, and red squirrels.

Caird Park also contains many fine heritage tree specimens, including an oak avenue and several grand copper-beeches.

The park is ideal for active recreation and walking, with 18 and 9 hole golf courses, athletic stadium, velodrome, and various winter sports pitches.
